Calyx

There are about 2,100 of us in the immediate W&L Community. The W&L Community, though, exists only in a geographical sense. We are/were all here for a finite space/time. For each one of us, W&L is a different place. You shouldn't feel offended if every page of this book doesn't look like your W&L. If, on another extreme, you can't personally relate to any part of the book, who are you?

The 1973 CALYX is intended to serve as a soundtrack for your eyes; it was conceived as an artistic documentary on the school year 1972-73, plus the 1972 Mock Convention. Inclusion of the Convention disrupts conventional chronological continuity, but then, the linear concept of time never made much sense anyway — just ulcers.

The basic idea of this volume is the assembly of photos and words in a visually appealing manner. Words are held to a minimum, for photographs communicate more and faster. The conventional function of a yearbook is one of historical record. I have attempted to fuse history with art; I hope to tell you what you want to know and to make it fun, too.

Conventional reference data, such as addresses of students, et cetera, are not included. The student directory has it all; there is where it belongs, here it would only serve to clutter things up.

As to interpretations and implications of what is included herein, they are, in Shakespierre's words, "As You Like It." Visual art speaks for itself, and does so in the language of the viewer.

The one stress I moved away from is the concept of an event-oriented book. Sure, events of the year are in fact included, but so are the everyday things. Just plain old boring things, regular unoutstanding people doing them. If you think back on it, you'll have to admit that such things take up a lot of time around W&L.

The rigid academic structure which prevents W&L from keeping up with the change of decades (though some would say centuries) condemned us to spend much of our time doing things which hindered our learning more than helping it. Specific data inputs were required at phenomenally fast — and sometimes absurd — rates. And we pay someone else money for this? Such is the nature of a university. (monoversity?)

The only thought I wish to provoke is upon the question of what we're doing here, or in some cases, if we're doing anything here. You are free, by choice of your way of life, to decide which group you fall into. There are those among us who limit themselves in their viewpoint on W&L, and would even go so far as to limit the viewpoints of others. This book is dedicated to the widening of viewpoints, and to those who widened mine.

MOCK CONVENTION
MAY, 1972

INTIMATIONS OF MIAMI

George McGovern showed early foot. Hubert Humphrey rallied and faded. Ed Muskie made a late surge. A hotly contested primary? No, a hotly contested mock political convention at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Virginia., the boomingest of the quadrennial campus mass ventures into political prediction. Washington and Lee's convention also has the best record for accuracy. Since visiting Speaker William Jennings Bryan inspired their first mock convention in 1908, the student delegates have correctly predicted the presidential nominee for the out-of-power party a remarkable ten of 14 times. It has been 60 years, in fact, since they were wrong about a Democrat.

This year's extravaganza got under way with a parade down Lexington's main street with bands, floats, and real live jackasses. George Wallace's float, naturally, was a yellow school bus loaded with his mock delegates toting serious placards: REDNECK POWER. Another realistic touch was a token mob riding in a Jeep bearing the sign: MOCK RIOTS, CHAOS. The parade was followed by a keynote speech by Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter that was received, reported the Richmond Times-Dispatch, with "remarkably convincing mock boredom."

The voting was tougher than usual this year, what with a crowd of candidates, eleven more real primaries still to go, a revised set of party rules, and an expanded electorate. For months, the 1,000 student delegates (out of a student enrollment of 1,600) had been conferring with Democratic leaders in all 50 states. Throughout last week's balloting, mock state chairmen sought advice by telephone from the same experts on how to vote, when to switch. After the appropriate hoopla, nominating speeches and floor demonstrations, the roll call got under way ("The great state of West Virginia, home of Jerry West, Don Knotts, Soupy Sales, casts its 35 votes . . . "). On the first roll call, McGovern started strongly with 1,205½ of the 1,509 votes needed for the nomination, climbed to 1,355½ on the second, and then fell into a seeming deadlock with Humphrey, who eventually gave way to Muskie. Finally after twelve hours and seven roll calls, the mock delegates settled on the nominee: Ted Kennedy.

New-culture students are leaving an environment in which their attitudes are widely shared and moving into one in which they will be isolated, surrounded, and shunted onto a series of conveyor belts that carry one into the old culture with a certain inevitable logic that can be resisted only with deliberate and perpetual effort.

Students know this and fear it. They dread becoming like their parents but cannot see how to avoid it. It is as if they had come to the edge of a dense, overgrown forest, penetrable only by a series of smooth, easily traversed paths, all of which, however, have signs saying "To the Quicksand."

WORDS ADDRESSED TO SOME MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1973

1. "How was Freshman Camp?"
"We gotcha comin' back?"
"Try somma this."
"So then I said to her, ' "They will if you stack 'em right!' "
"Yeah, I hate to blackball him, but the guy is such a turkey." Homer Gamble. Staman Ogilvie. Swede Henberg. The truckstop, coats and ties. Moratorium. Mel Cartwright. Mike Neer. Old Doremus. Martha and the Vandellas. That kind of year. Mystery Man. Easy Rider. Lacrosse. Nixon. Cambodia. Strike. UVa. Jerry Rubin. William Kunstler. Gates Shaw. Fran Lawrence. Jeff Gingold. Robert E.R. Huntley. Good God. Whatever happened to apathy? Still time for the world's greatest water fight.
2. New Year. New Semesters. New truckstop. New dress. Remember when we had fraternities? Goshen, often. Mary Baldwin, Sem, etc. more often. Is that really — gee, can I roll one? Why aren't I hallucinating? Christ. Snow. More snow. Spring is late, but worth the wait. W&L Country Club. Tubing. Water is cold, drugs are available. Lacrosse is back, so is Jerry Rubin. And two drunk townies. Washington, D.C. again. Whose idea was 12-12-6, anyway? Bakery Free Library.
3. So when's the gym gonna be finished? Coeducation my ass. Card-carrying male chauvinists. Handball. Saunas. Co-ed saunas. "You mean they just walked right into the shower room?" Topsiders from A.D. Mild, mellow winter. Jim Dye. Lacrosse Freaks under the scoreboard. Goose Creek. Dick Miller before he dicks you. Crooked Bridge. Haze.
4. Bob Brennan? George McGovern. Four More, and back to apathy. Peace is at hand. It can't happen here. Who says? Bust. Seen your roommate lately? Richard M. Nixon, again. Washington, D.C. one last time. Saturday, January 27, 1973. 7 pm. Let the bells ring. Amen.

Four years later, we are not the same. But freshmen are. They talk about the house, booze, the bastard who gave them a "dog," and always, going down the road. Like we did. Fraternities are back. Apathy never really left. We have changed some things as we ourselves have changed. But did we change them only for ourselves? Will the change last when people still start where they always have? Will they have to change the same things again so that in four years they and the things they change will be only where we are now? The eternal return? No. A nauseating cycle? Maybe. We changed ourselves. We tried to change others. Is that enough? Who knows? Now we've been removed. Blown away. The Winds of Change. 1969-1973. R.I.P. So it goes.
